

EFFORT TO IMPEACH PRES. HOOVER VOTED DOWN

EIGHT DEATHS BY VIOLENCE FOLLOW EDICT

Chicago Mayor's Ultimatum To Police Preceded Them

Chicago, Dec. 13—(AP)—Metropolitan Chicago counted eight deaths by violence today—six by gunfire; one by suffocation when robbers left a woman victim to die after binding and gagging her, and another by stabbing.

Of the six, three were policemen, one a bandit, one an alleged automobile thief and another a former nightweight boxer.

The killing occurred within a few hours of an anti-crime ultimatum delivered by Mayor Anton J. Cermak to the city's police captains.

The dead: Detectives Frank Svec, 44, and Edgar Chatterton, 33, of suburban Berwyn's police department.

Policeman Albert G. Magoon, 35, a robber identified as Albert White, 24, who died while being taken to the Bridewell hospital after engaging in a pistol fight with a drug store owner and an employee and a confederate attempted to holdup.

Joseph Seidel, 20, shot and instantly killed by police during a four mile chase in a stolen car.

Frankie Schaeffer, 30, former boxer, body found in a tailor shop which police said was a beer flat.

Miss Gertrude Frisch, 49, suffocated while her 75-year-old father, also bound and gagged, looked on unable to help her.

Mrs. Miguel Ramirez, 28, found stabbed to death. A boarder in her home, Vincente Granados was hunted by police.

Confesses Killing Two Detectives Svec and Chatterton were shot down at the back door of Arthur Lave's house in Berwyn when they knocked to serve a warrant upon Lave, 40, charging him with failure to send his 10-year-old daughter and 7-year-old son to school.

Lave, arrested soon after, confessed, police said but pleaded he thought the officers were robbers.

Magoon was killed in a reputed beer flat by two bullets fired from a weapon concealed in the overcoat pocket of one of three men who joined an argument they were having with the owner, Jerry Mass police were told.

The officer had just ordered one of the trio, who represented themselves as the "alcohol syndicate," to remove his hand from his coat pocket and was advancing toward him when the pistol blazed forth, Mass told police. The trio escaped.

Spectacular Shooting The drug store bandit fell mortally wounded in the most spectacular shooting of all. White and a companion had entered Walter Krop's pharmacy and ordered the six persons in the place, including three customers, to "stick 'em up."

All complied except Krop and Steve Kirincic, a watchman, who immediately opened fire. In the exchange of shots seven struck the robbers. Kirincic was shot twice in each leg and Krop in the ankle. The other robber fled.

The body of the former boxer Frankie Schaeffer, 30, was found in a tailor shop which police said was known as a beer flat. Fred Schaeffer, Negro, the owner was persuaded. The killing recalled the gangland execution a year ago of Schaeffer's former manager, Martin (Babe) Mulloney.

Miss Frisch was left to die by two young hoodlums who spent three hours looting a small candy store operated by her and her father, Frederick Frisch.

Forcing their way into the place after closing hours they tied the father and daughter to two chairs and gagged them with rags, old ropes and pieces of clothing. Frisch told police later he saw his daughter suffering the agonies of suffocation but was unable to help her. The robbers got $3.

Speroni Sentenced To Jail And Fined John E. Speroni, Rock Falls gasoline station operator who was found guilty of charges of possession and sale of intoxicating liquor several days ago in County court at Morrison yesterday afternoon was fined $750 and 30 days of the county and sentenced to three months in the Whiteside county jail on each of the counts, the sentence to run concurrently.

Before pronouncing sentence, Judge Harry J. Ludens denied the defense counsel a motion for a new trial. However, he did grant an appeal of the case to Appellate court. Speroni is now at liberty on bonds.

Jail Deliverers' Trial At Ottawa Ottawa, Ill., Dec. 12—(AP)—Trials of Max Marx and Lavin Slavik, alias Chicken, of Chicago, who are accused of helping gunmen hold up the LaSalle county jail last June and free three prisoners, were to begin today.

The men freed in the jail delivery were Chuck Tilden, Jacob Pearson and Ike Katowitz of Chicago, who had been arrested for the $52,000 holdup at the Union National Bank at Streator, Ill.

MIDWEST GETS RELIEF FROM BITTER COLD

More Snow Promised: Winter Invades Alien Sectors

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Unrelenting, except in spots, premature winter kept up its assault on the nation today.

Temperatures in the east were sagging, and mercury drops were forecast for states below the Mason and Dixon line.

The Midwest, already blanketed by snow was promised more, but with temperatures higher than those of yesterday when sub-zero readings brought suffering to the homeless, Chicago had 24 above zero—the coldest December 12 on the city's records.

For the first time in history Sacramento, Calif., had ice skating on the natural lakes of the city's parks and snow fell in Brawley, Calif., where there was no record of such weather before. Snow also covered the ground at Yuma, Ariz.

The Rocky Mountain states, however, and Oklahoma, began enjoying milder temperatures. Air travel was resumed. Before the moderation started seven persons died in Oklahoma as a result of the cold wave. At Lyons, Colo. Mrs. Ellen Dwyer, 76, a pioneer, was found frozen to death in bed. Beside her and also frozen to death was her pet chicken.

An official low of 41 below zero was reported yesterday by Eden, Wyo., followed by a rise in temperatures.

In Alien Kingdom Los Angeles, Dec. 13—(AP)—In a strange spectacle King Winter invaded an alien kingdom today and spread his white robe of snow over the Great American desert—where the sun is a scorching tyrant in the summer, and winter rarely comes at all.

In the first measurable quantity of record, snow fell throughout southern California's Imperial Valley, at Yuma, Ariz., and at Blythe and Needles, Calif., along the northern reaches of the desert country.

These names are almost synonymous with heat ranging from 100 to 120 degrees in summertime.

In the desert country winter is usually only a snappy interlude between long months of hot weather, and dry.

Light rains in Imperial Valley changed into snow before last midnight and left an inch deep mantle on the ground.

Even more fell at Yuma. North of there, Nohave county, Arizona, received its heaviest snow since 1885. Snow was general in Arizona.

A depth of four and five feet was reached in the resort areas of the San Bernardino mountains some 75 miles from Los Angeles, where subnormal temperatures prevailed.

102, Has Never Seen Show, Movie, Circus Quincy, Ill., Dec. 13—(AP)—Simon Reineke, who will celebrate his 102nd birthday tomorrow, has never seen a theatrical performance, a motion picture or even a circus.

Reineke's rare claim to fame was revealed today, when he was brought forward as guest of the Quincy Rotary Club.

In his luncheon talk, Reineke said he was born in Germany and came to Quincy in the winter of 1839-60. He became a farmer, but retired 30 years ago. He reported himself as in good health.

He still talks excitedly about the big automobile factories he saw on a trip to Detroit two years ago.

Uganda, Africa, now is formulating extensive plans to completely rid the Nile of its silt, large floating islands of vegetation that have seriously obstructed traffic on this river for many centuries.

Boys are more excited by movie scenes than girls, an Ohio State University professor contends.

PALMYRA HOME DESTROYED BY FIRE IN NIGHT

Fred Piper Family Is Driven Into Cold In Night Clothes

The Fred Piper family residing in the Ellis Mason property west of Dixon on the Lincoln Highway, narrowly escaped with their lives this morning shortly after 2 o'clock when the house and practically all of its contents were totally destroyed by fire. Four children who were sleeping in rooms on the second floor escaped in their night clothes.

A son, Harold was awakened by the smoke and fumes which filled the house and he ran to the first floor awakening his parents and grabbed a pair of overalls and an old coat which he wrapped around himself as he rushed back to the second floor to awaken the other sleeping children. The fire had gained considerable headway and the entire house was filled with smoke.

The children were rushed to the Charles Lawton home in their scanty night clothes. Harold went to the Lawton home as soon as he had donned clothing and gave the alarm. The coat which he wore was burning when he reached the Lawton home. With the thermometer registering zero, the family fled from the burning structure and were taken to the homes of neighbors where they were still being cared for today.

Firemen Helpless Within a very few minutes the entire building was a mass of flame, and it was impossible for neighbors to remove any of the household effects. Firemen Albert Fordyce and Ben Rippon of the Dixon department responded to a call with the community fire truck but the flames were beyond control when they arrived. Both firemen suffered from the zero cold weather in making the run.

The fire is believed to have started from a defective chimney and smoldered for some time before breaking out in flame. The loss to the house was reported to be partially covered with insurance but the Piper family had no insurance on their household effects.

The fire department responded to an alarm at 3:30 yesterday afternoon, making a run to the Shell service station on Third street and Galena avenue where an automobile driven by C. J. McLean of this city had caught fire while the radiator was being thawed out. The fire was extinguished with only slight damage to the car.

LITTLE CAMELS Washington—Camels used to roam the United States, but they were just small counterparts of those who ply the deserts of Africa. So says Dr. Charles W. Gilmer, Smithsonian Institution paleontologist, who was digging around the Rocky Mountain foothills this summer. There he found the skeletons of prehistoric camels, that measured only two and a half to three feet tall.

DRYS TO SEEK NEW ELECTIONS IN WET STATES

New Poll Where State Enforcement Acts Were Repudiated

Washington, Dec. 13—(AP)—A decision to seek a new vote in states where prohibition laws were repudiated in the recent elections was made today by the National Board of Trustees of the Anti-Saloon League.

Resolutions calling for united action in behalf of prohibition laws were prepared for adoption today by delegates to the league "resist repeal" convention.

They followed close behind a promise that prohibition candidates for Congress would be helped by the dry organizations in future elections, made at a dinner last night by Dr. Howard Russell, founder of the league.

He made this promise after Representative Blanton (D. Texas) had asserted in an address that politicians had learned that they could depend on the wets for support, but not on dry groups. He added: "If you dry, when a dry Congressman is running for his life, are smart you will get behind him."

It was then that Dr. Russell said, "you will hear from us in the future." He explained that an organization known as the Lincoln Lee Chain was recently formed and that through its efforts the Ohio anti-prohibition vote had been reduced in the national election. He termed this a "beginning."

Many of the leaders who attended the convention opposed modification of the Volstead act today at the House Ways and Means committee hearing.

The Senate Judiciary subcommittee, named to consider all prohibition repeal legislation postponed the scheduled opening meeting today because of lack of a quorum and will try to meet tomorrow.

Two members of the committee of five Senators (Borah, R. Idaho, and Walsh, D. Mont.), had to attend the Foreign Relations committee hearing on the St. Lawrence waterway, for Robert (R. Wis.), a third member, was out of the city.

Senator Blaine, (R. Wis.), chairman, said he would try to get the group together tomorrow. He and Senator Dill, (D. Wash.), were the only members available today for the scheduled opening.

LINDBERGH IS NOT WORRYING ABOUT FUTURE

All Aviation Plans Made Abroad Cause No Anxiety Here

New York, Dec. 13—(AP)—The make-haste-slowly policy of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and his associates has resulted in an international hare-and-toise race for supremacy on the ocean airplanes, in which America is playing the part of the tortoise.
During the last year Col. Lindbergh and his assistants have constructed two giant planes for regular commercial schedules between the hemispheres—on paper.
During the same year, Germany, France, England and Japan have been constructing other giant ocean planes, not on paper but of wood and aluminum and fabric, planes which will probably be flying over the waves before the American ships have achieved more than the one dimension of the draughtsman's board.
Before spring it is expected that the new planes of the French, or the Germans, and possibly of both, will be flying regular schedules across the Atlantic. By that time the planes designed by Col. Lindbergh and his assistants will just about be ready to start construction, which will take approximately two years.

The Lindbergh staff is not worrying. The Atlantic the Germans and the French will be flying will be flying will be the South Atlantic and the crown of the air will go to that country which first establishes a regular line across the North Atlantic.

The European nations plunged into construction first, but by that very impetuosity they limited themselves to building planes much the same as are in use at present.

In contrast, the Lindbergh staff, the technicians of Pan-American Airways, of which he is technical adviser, sat back and figured out something new in planes.

When those Lindbergh planes at last go into the air, their designers are convinced they will be far better planes than have ever been built.

FIND STRANGER WITH DAGGER IN KAISER'S HOME

Doorn the Netherlands, Dec. 13—(AP)—A well-dressed stranger, caught yesterday in the former Kaiser's castle with a long dagger and a pistol on his person, was identified by castle guards today as a man who gained access to the castle grounds last Sunday, but was ejected.

They said he had stayed at a local hotel since Saturday under the name Hilmi Kold, but that his real name was supposed to be Eder. The man said he was German and had a message for the former Kaiser from Adolf Hitler, National Socialist party chief in Germany.

The prisoner was taken by a police guard to the provincial capital, Utrecht, whence it was believed he would be escorted across the frontier. While in Doorn, his behavior was quiet and he excited no suspicion.

He was discovered crouching yesterday in the so-called turret room of the castle, adjoining the ex-Kaiser's study.

Police said he slipped into the grounds of Wilhelm von Hohenoller's exile home behind an automobile and succeeded in entering the vestibule of the castle last Sunday. He asked a servant to direct him to the Kaiser.

He appeared to be unbalanced and was refused admittance. He said in fluent German that he would call again.

When caught yesterday police said, he refused to give any information other than that he had no felonious intentions. He was detained overnight at the Doorn town hall because the town has no prison.

He was believed to have climbed unseen over the castle wall to reach the turret room.

NEWS CHURCHES

BETHEL U. E. REVIVAL

Tonight will begin the third week of our revival campaign. This being "Sunday school night" every member of the Sunday school is urged to come and bring a friend.

Evangelist James, the pastor, and members of Bethel Church wish to thank the pastors and scores of people from other churches in the city as well as many outside the city for helping to make this campaign a decided success.

The problem now is to find room for those who come, but rather than turn away large crowds, we shall find a larger meeting place.

Evangelist James is urging that the Christian people of the city make this a great week of prayer. He stated, "The battle for Jesus Christ is not yet won and the only way we can win it is on our knees."

Pray in your homes and come out to the afternoon prayer meetings in the church conducted by Rev. James on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, at 2:30 P. M. also each night at 7 o'clock promptly, in the Sunday school room of the church.

You will always find a welcome at Bethel U. E. Church. Come and bring a friend.

FRENCH DEBT PAYMENT MAY BE WITHDRAWN

An important section of the group probably will vote against payment. Several members threatened to resign if the group insisted that all must vote in favor of the government.

The Chamber of Deputies went into session a little later with Louis Marin, a former Cabinet minister, opening the debate on the debts.

Turn Against Hoover

He began with a denunciation of the Hoover moratorium, and as he was speaking the word went about that the Foreign Affairs committee, having rejected the government's draft note, had voted to present an earlier resolution calling for payment only if the United States accepts in advance the proposal for a conference to reconsider the debt structure.

M. Marin criticized the speech Premier Herriot made in the Chamber yesterday in the course of which the Premier appealed to the Chamber not to dishonor the signature of France.

"Nobody wants to strike a blow at the security of the nation's given word," said M. Marin.

"What has broken the contract?" he demanded, "it was the initiative of President Hoover when he launched his moratorium!"

BRITAIN WILL PAY

London, Dec. 13—(AP)—A laconic British note dispatched to Washington today promising to pay the debt installment due on Thursday signifies that there has been no change in the basic British policy of cancellation of the war debts, with payments to be made under protest or with reservations until that goal or at least a drastic revision of the debts has been realized.

The new note merely affirms in words less liable to be misunderstood what was set forth in the British note of last Sunday, and completes the exchange of legalistic views.

What the note lacks in the eyes of government critics, is any notification to the United States that the $55,550,000 payment due this week will be the last Great Britain will make under the present funding scheme.

The government meets this criticism somewhat with a renewed appeal to the United States or an early review of the whole problem.

Text of Note

The text of the note follows: "In reply to the note of the 11th of December, the government of the United Kingdom, His Majesty's government desire to emphasize that the purpose of their note of even date was to state clearly their own position in regard to payment on the 15th of December and to explain the circumstances in which they had decided to make that payment. It was not of course the intention of their note to touch upon any matter affecting the constitutional position of the United States.

"Their note should, therefore, be read solely as relating to their own position which they have taken after mature consideration, viz: "That they are prepared to make payment on the 15th of December in the light of considerations set out in their note of the 11th of December and they must reserve the right to recur to these considerations in the examination of the whole question to which the United States government have agreed. They would again emphasize the importance of entering upon that examination without loss of time."

Babe Didrikson Is Barred By S.A.A.U.

New Orleans, Dec. 13—(AP)—Milred Babe Didrikson, noted girl athlete of Dallas, Texas, was today declared suspended from further amateur competition by the registration committee of the Southern Amateur Athletic Union following an investigation into her alleged endorsement of an automobile for advertising purposes.

Lawrence Di Benedetto, head of the registration committee and secretary of the Southern A.A.U., who conducted the inquiry at the instance of National A. A. U. officials, said the suspension would remain in effect until Miss Didrikson had produced the original or a photostatic copy of a purported release authorizing the advertisement for examination by his committee.

He said the committee had been unable to procure the original release or a copy from the advertising agents.

HARTZELL HOME SADDENED: ONLY SON SUMMONED

Funeral Of Billy G. Hartzell Will Be Held Tomorrow

William George Hartzell, son of Frank and Gertrude Earles Hartzell, passed away at the Glidden Memorial hospital in DeKalb at 7:15 o'clock Sunday evening, following an operation for appendicitis, at the age of five years, three months and seven days. The funeral will be held at the Nachusa Lutheran church at 1:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, Reverend Pscholtz, assisted by Rev. Paul Gordon of Dixon, officiating, and interment will be at the Emmert cemetery east of Nachusa.

The little fellow had not shown any signs of illness until Friday, when he began to fall rapidly. He was taken to the hospital Sunday where the operation was performing, but he failed to rally from the operation and passed away soon after its completion.

He was born in Amboy township near Eldena, Sept. 4, 1927, and went to DeKalb with his parents entering school last fall. He was a very bright and friendly child loved by all who knew him and he will be greatly missed. He is survived by his grief-stricken parents, three sisters, Dorothy, Lucile and Evelyn, all younger; his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. George Hartzell and Mr. and Mrs. William Earles; and several uncles, aunts and cousins.

HOUSE DEFEATS ENEMY'S MOVE BY HEAVY VOTE

asked for recognition and presented a resolution saying that since President Hoover has "usurped the powers of Congress" he should be impeached.

Has Been Hoover Foe

After McFadden had repeatedly quarreled with administration officials and attacked the President he was short of his patronage privileges by his fellow party members more than a year ago. He especially opposed the moratorium.

Today, he told the House the "usurpation" by the President to which he referred was in proclaiming the moratorium. He contended that action led to the present situation involving the United States and its foreign debtors.

The House listened silently as the resolution charging President Hoover "with violating the laws and constitution of the United States" and with "high crimes and misdemeanors" was read by the clerk.

It said the President's actions had prevented "receipt of payment of money" owed the United States by foreign governments and charged him with conducting conversations with foreign representatives "ignominious to the United States."

Charges Listed

The resolution said Mr. Hoover had "unlawfully attempted to usurp and has usurped legislative powers and functions of the Congress of the United States" and has violated the Constitution.

It charged that Mr. Hoover had "pursued a policy inimical to the laws of the United States by employing means to influence the deliberations of the legislative branch of the government and has interfered with freedom of debate in Congress and has forced unsound and unconstitutional legislation upon the people, which violations make him guilty of high crimes and misdemeanors and impeachment."

Had the resolution been adopted the Judiciary committee immediately would have begun impeachment hearings. Its report then would have been referred back to the House for action.

The officers of the Civic Music Assn., announce that the next concert for the Dixon members will be held on the evening of Monday, January 23rd, at the Methodist church at which time they will have the pleasure of listening to Janet Fairbank, beautiful young soprano. The talent for the third concert will be announced soon. An American critic and a German critic both give this young woman unstinted praise: "Her voice has the faculty to charm the ear, and this by means of an exquisite taste. Her vocal style, her diction, the distinguished poise of her interpretative utterance, place her among the most" sincere and gifted of the youthful coterie of platform singers."

—Herman DeVries, in the Chicago Evening American.

"If it is the duty of art to give joy to mankind, as I believe in these troublous times it is, one can gladly endorse Janet Fairbank as one who fulfills this task with unusual charm. Particularly in this so in songs of a joyous nature. She has a high, light soprano voice of unusually sympathetic timbre which seems especially made for lyric music and folk songs. Her personality, as well as the light, gracious way in which she sang Schubert's "Wohnin," his "Wanderer an den Mond" and his charming song "Die Vogel" gave us joy.

"Her German diction can be used as a pattern. Her musical conception is charming and appealing. Charming and appealing are the two words which best sum up this charmingly groomed singer. She gives the impression of being endowed with a fortunate temperament; of being a person who has had the good luck to live on the sunny side of life, and who now takes joy in passing that warmth on to all who may be susceptible to it—and the public was very susceptible. The German as well as the American."

—Karl Gustaf Grabe, in the Berlin Jungdeutsch Zeitung, May 26, 1932.

Truth Seekers S. S. Class Entertained

The Truth Seekers class of the Bethel Sunday school met at the home of Miss Virginia Deardoff Thursday afternoon with Miss Mable Cramer as assisting hostess. Two songs were sung by the happy gathering, "The Solid Rock" and "Sweet Hour of Prayer." Miss Deardoff read the 96th Psalm. Miss Lona Beckingham, the president, called the meeting to order. The business meeting was short, as a prayer service was held in connection with the revival meeting Rev. James is now conducting in Bethel church.

A Christmas box was packed for the Amy Chadwick Orphanage at Atlanta, Ga.
The hostesses then served delicious refreshments, and all present reported a very enjoyable afternoon.

Mrs. Jones Elected President of W. R. C. Monday Afternoon

Girl Scout News Notes Of Interest

All the Girl Scout troops of the city are busy with Christmas plans. Troop V has been busy dressing dolls, mending doll furniture, and making scrapbooks for some families Christmas.

Troop IV members are planning a lovely basket to deliver to a family for their Christmas dinner. It will contain everything necessary for a delicious meal.
Brownie Packs are busy with organization, play, and work. The North side pack is soon to have a new Tawny Owl.

The South Side Brownies had an impressive investiture ceremony last week. Among the prominent participants in this service were: Carol Heckman, the "pixie leader."

Sue Bryant, the "sprites" leader, Elizabeth Warner, the "gnomes" leader.
Janet Wimpleberg, "fairy" leader. Each Brownie had a grand time singing songs, making and renewing their Brownie pledges, etc.

The high school troop members are busy completing plans for a Christmas party which will brighten the Christmas season for some unfortunate children.
The Scouts will go carolling this year on Wednesday or Thursday before Christmas. Definite plans will be announced later.

MRS. DURKES TO ENTERTAIN PRESBYTERIAN W. M. S.
The Women's Missionary Society of the Presbyterian church will meet Friday afternoon at 2:30 at the home of Mrs. W. C. Durkes, 722 East Fellows street, with Mrs. Barry Lennon as hostess. A special Christmas program has been arranged. Mrs. Phillip Raymond will sing. Mrs. Harry Lager will give "The Mansions" by Van Dyke, and films of the American College at Tehran will be shown. All ladies of the congregation are cordially invited.

CRINKLY RIBBON SCARF WITH BLACK JERSEY
Paris —(AP)—Mrs. Peter Widener attended a recent smart tea wearing a frock of black satin jersey designed along very simple lines and trimmed with a waistcoat scarf or white crinkly ribbon. A black suede belt fastening with four long silver bars was worn with the frock.

MISS LOWRY TO ENTERTAIN S. S. CLASS
Miss Vivian Lowry will entertain the members of her Sunday school class at the Methodist church Saturday evening.

Let Children Plan Also
We got mother everything from a bouquet of wax morning glories to a paper parasol. Howard bought Daddy two celluloid collars, one with red stripes. My but he was proud of them—Howard, I mean. I gave Daddy a two-quart cup with a dog on the side.

Children Enjoy Christmas Planning
"What was the most fun you ever had on Christmas?" I asked a seventeen-year-old girl the other day.
Quite naively she answered, "One year when mother was sick in bed."
"Perhaps it was the best she ever had, too," I had to say, "If she wasn't too sick to rest and sick enough not to worry about you children."

"She had had an operation," she said. "It was in Iowa where we spent a year while daddy was getting some company or other together. I was about eleven and Howard nine. We didn't know many people and there we were mother sick in bed and Christmas coming."

"Grandma was coming out but she got sick too. We had a maid and that was all right, but daddy was hardly ever home except the week ends. He had to be out in other towns a good bit. Mother died because we always had a big Christmas back home and she didn't want us to be disappointed."

"Something must have turned up to make you remember it this way," I said.
Bought Own Tree
"Yes, it did," she continued. "Daddy gave each of us ten dollars a couple of weeks before Christmas. And did we have the time of our lives?"

"Howard and I knew there wouldn't be any Christmas unless we made it ourselves. Were we excited? We decided to surprise mother instead of her surprising us. The first thing we did was to get a tree. We youngsters picked it out, the kind we'd always wanted with long needles."

"Then we proceeded to shop. We bought tree ornaments first—all sorts of queer ones. Next we decided to spend some conscience money and bought a dollar's worth of toys for poor children. That took two days and we would spend hours trying to decide on the color of a ball of the build of a ten-cent boat. We left the package in the vestibule of a church and marked it 'For the Poor.' We felt very useful and grown up."

"After that we went shopping in real earnest. With that twenty dollars we bought enough presents to fill a freight train. Some of our relations back east must have been surprised. Uncle John, I remember, got a large red tin tray. He is a bachelor and has a beautiful apartment in New York. We remembered his chairs were red leather. So why not a ten-cent red tray? Perhaps it never reached him. We weren't much on wrapping."

What Kind Of Salad in Winter

Many home-makers find the winter salad question quite perplexing. The necessity of serving uncooked food is clearly realized, but the resources seem limited and head lettuce becomes the standby.

The winter salad fills an important place in the daily menu. It must supply bulk to a diet apt to be made of rich and "concentrated" foods and it also must furnish salts and vitamins to maintain the proper balance of the diet. The contrasting flavor of crisp raw foods, as well as the appetizing appearance of salads are worth while qualities that deserve consideration.

Hearty salads of meat, fish and eggs usually are wanted for special occasions and seldom find a place in the regular winter menu. Cream cheese, nuts, peanut butter, dried fruits, canned fruits, fresh fruits, fresh and canned vegetables and a variety of jellied combinations all are suitable and inviting for winter salads, and most of them always are available.

Tomato Jelly Attractive
Tomato jelly is a splendid substitute for fresh tomatoes. Its bright color makes it particularly attractive for the holiday season. Do you know the trick of making individual molds of clear jelly and scooping out the center to form cups? The cups are filled with extra material just as fresh tomatoes are stuffed. Any mixture that would be used for fresh tomatoes can be used for the filling.

Jellied beet salad also is of a pretty red color. Combined with shredded white cabbage a most attractive red and white salad is made. To make a vivid red and green salad, choose the greenest leaves of lettuce, shred them and use as a nest for individual molds of jellied beefs.

Bright red apples, carefully washed and polished, make a gay salad cut petal fashion almost to the blossom end. The core is carefully removed and the cavity filled with any preferred combination well moistened with salad

SANTA SUGGESTS

A Towel Set For the Men
Every man loves squashy, colorful, handsome bath-towel sets, even if he be unconsciously using thin, white ones that his wife supplies. One of the nicest presents you can give a man is a personal set of mat. This year there are new clip-ped pile bath mats, in the same de-bath-towels, wash-rags and bath signs as the towels and cloths, which look like and feel like chills.

New towel designs have real gaiety, such as this prancing Trojan horse, modernized yet prancing. Green, yellow, pink, blue—you can get sets in any color you think your brother, husband or father would like.

THE LONG VIEW OF THE WAR DEBTS.
The most vexing thing about the war debts problem is that we seem apt to get a first-hand illustration of the griefs that beset a man when he cuts off his nose to spite his face.

On the surface, the issue is as clear as an April dawn. These foreign nations borrowed vast sums of money from us for their own purposes. We have already made generous settlements with them. For a whole year we excused them from paying interest or principle. Now the payments are due, and we have a perfect right to press a just claim.

Unfortunately, however, there are elements below the surface which complicate the situation.

Does it pay a creditor to force his debtors to settle up when his prosperity depends largely on his ability to continue selling goods to them, and when their ability to buy his goods stands to be practically obliterated if they pay what they owe?

Putting the question in that way may be an over-simplification of the issue. But in the long run it comes down to that, or to something very like it. The British contention that British can pay "only by adopting measures which would further restrict the British purchase of American goods" is one that few reputable economists will dispute.

It may be perfectly true, as President-elect Roosevelt has said, that "the stabilization of world finances can best be achieved by a clear understanding of just obligations." But there is more to it than that. Let us have a clear understanding of them, by all means; but let us also have a clear understanding of precisely what will happen if every penny of these obligations must be paid.

For it is, after all, a question of what is most greatly to our own self-interest. There is excellent authority for the statement that we should be better off, in the end, if we did not collect the debts that if we did; and before we commit ourselves we must look into that assertion very carefully.

AL SMITH'S CHALLENGE.

Al Smith's program for sweeping changes in the frame work of New York City's government is, of course, a matter chiefly of interest to New Yorkers. But because it offers a bold course for bringing the structure of municipal government up to date, it is something that all Americans can study very profitably.

That a drastic revision of our governing bodies is needed, all the way from city hall through the county courthouse to the state capitol, is hardly open to argument. The present set-up, in almost every instance, is wasteful and cumbersome. And while we could afford to put up with such waste and inefficiency when times were prosperous, we cannot afford it any longer.

It would be a good thing if Mr. Smith's program would lead to an overhauling, not only in New York but throughout the nation.

THE PRICE OF SPEED.

It will help you, perhaps, to realize just what serious thing our automobile traffic problem really is, to read figures concerning accidents compiled recently about the historic Newburyport turnpike, a 30-mile stretch of road running north of Boston.

This bit of road, one of the most famous and heavily traveled in the nation, is also one of the most dangerous. During the last four years 343 people have been killed on it and no fewer than 20,000 have been injured.

Here is a casualty list as heavy as some of our bloodiest Civil War battles were able to roll up. It represents the price we are paying for the automobile age—or, rather, it represents in graphic form a small part of that price on one specific sector. And unless we soon find some way of very materially reducing that toll, we shall confess our utter impotence to handle the machinery in which science has enveloped our lives.

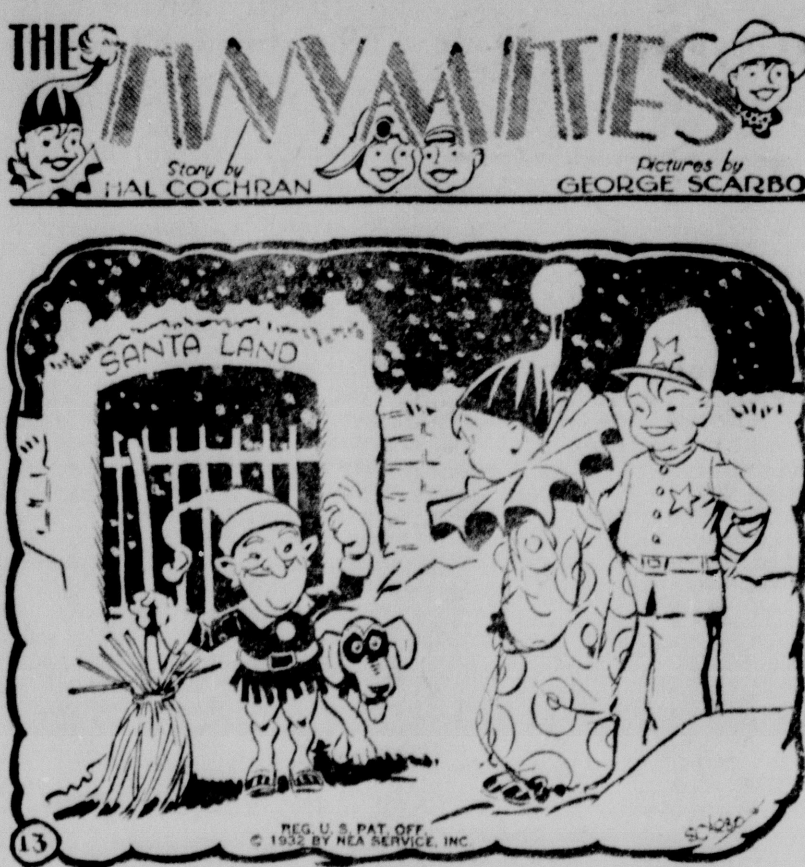

Too many of our good people are sitting on air cushions and doing nothing while boys play cops and robbers and holdups in the streets and learn how to become gangsters. —Mrs. William Shrimplin, president, Kings County (N. Y.) W. C. T. U.

I could drink light beer all day and not become intoxicated. It might warm the stomach a little, but that is not intoxicating. —Representative W. H. Stafford (Rep., Wis.) before congressional committee.

The most important policy of every country at this juncture is the maintenance of peace. —Hugh Guthrie, Canadian minister of justice.

Damn isn't profanity. When I say some high-binder is "damned liar," that means he is a consummate liar. —Governor W. H. ("Alfalfa Bill") Murray of Oklahoma.

What is there so mysterious about a woman's figure in these days that they have to show them undressing on the screen. —Mrs. Neil R. Wallace, city amusement inspector, Birmingham, Ala.

The pilot of the airship said, "Now, Tinytinkles, we will sail straight ahead for about a mile or two and then I'll start to gain some height."
"I'm very sure that pretty soon we will be riding 'neath the moon. I hope you do not mind that we are going to ride all night."
"Each one of you can take a nap. I promise there'll be no mishap. I have run this ship all over and it's safe as it can be."
"Enjoy the trip now, while you can. There's lots of scenery to see. Don't worry about a single thing. Just leave it all to me."
"That's fair enough," said wee Scouty. "You should know just what you ought to do. If you need help, here's Windy. He is an aviation lad."
"He's driven planes both here and there and traveled far up in the air. Whenever he can lend a hand, I know it will make him glad."
The pilot then said, "I will keep the ship in air. I never sleep. I thank you for the offer, but I won't need any aid."
"There is lots to gain and naught to lose if you all take a little snooze. When you wake up you will be surprised at what good time I have made."
The bunch soon was in slumberland. At dawn the pilot clapped his hand on Coppy's back and shouted, "Hey, wake up you Tinytinkles!"
"We're near the place where we are bound, where lots of nice things will be found. I want you all real wide awake so you can see the sights."
The ship then settled down a bit. Wee Duncy shouted, "Look! That's it. A great big gate reads SANTA LAND! Say, isn't this just great?"
The ship then dipped and whirled around and then it landed on the ground. The Tinkles spied an elf who stood beneath the great big gate.

BUILDING BACTERIA
From the Rockefeller Institute there emanates a report on the almost magical transformation of acteria. The germ worked with was that of pneumonia.
This germ ordinarily has a capsule about it. The nature of the capsule and its relationship to the disease-producing powers of the germ, as well as its connection with the germ's resistance to the defensive mechanisms of the body, are of much interest and importance.
By cultivating or growing the germ under what are, for the germ, undesirable circumstances, it is possible to produce from the normal and capsulated pneumococcus germ a degenerate non-capsulated type.
This degenerate, mutant or altered type of germ can be experimentally bred, that is, cultivated and it will reproduce for many test tube generations germs of its own "naked" type.
In further experiments this naked, degenerate type of germ was injected into mice, together with dead normal encapsulated pneumonia germs which had been killed by heat.
Subsequently, there were recovered from the blood of the expermental animals living pneumonia germs fully encapsulated.

Since dead germs do not multiply, it was assumed that the living, degenerate type must have undergone a second change or transformation. The capsules of the dead pneumonia germs, it appears, were grafted on the naked, degenerate type and a synthetic germ was thus produced.
Precisely how this transformation takes place is as yet unknown. However, other experiments have demonstrated that bacteria can be constitutionally altered by modifying the environment in which they grow.
In this respect they are like plants whose development can be affected by modification made in the soil.
This experimental study is likely to illuminate certain phases of immunity, the force of which enables man to overcome many diseases, including pneumonia.

DIZZY DAYS IN ENGLAND
BY HERBERT PLUMMER

The post-war years are already a fabulous time. That sprightly book, "Only Yesterday," which persuaded us to glance back at the last dozen years, was like a glimpse into a forgotten history book. It was hard to realize that all of the fantastic things recorded there happened to us.
Now we have "Just the Other Day," by John Collier and Laim Lang, in which England's post-armistice career is similarly recalled; and American readers will be struck by the fact that England had an even dizzier time than we did.
The era began with the sinking of the interned German fleet at Scapa Flow and ended with the mutiny of the British fleet at Invergordon. It included the hideous black-and-tan oppression in Ireland and the general strike. It brought England's first socialist government and it would wound up with an English pound that had departed from its golden base. It saw the decline of English industry, the rise of the dole and the rebellion in India.
In some ways the English pendulum didn't swing as widely as did ours. England had no Florida boom, no stock market orgy in 1929, no Scopes case, no Chicago gang wars. Still, England had her moments.

Paw Paw—The Paw Paw basketball team won over Lee Center on Friday evening. On Saturday they journeyed to Sheridan where the first team encountered a stronger lineup and met with its first defeat. The second team still remains on top with the score of 19-14 with Sheridan's best team.

Racelle Bradley and friend of Elkhorn, Wis., Laura and Bruce of Elgin visited their father and brothers on Sunday.
The Royal Neighbors held their annual Christmas party on Saturday evening at the pleasant home of Mrs. Byron Rosenkrans. Four tables of buncos were enjoyed by the guests until 10 o'clock. Earl Tyerman received first prize and Mrs. Myrtle Martin the consolation. A dainty lunch was served by a committee with Mrs. Fay Snow as chairman. During the luncheon Mrs. B. R. Tyerman rendered instrumental music followed by a group singing Christmas carols. A gift exchange brought the delightful party to a close.
Mr. and Mrs. Herman Roessler have both been on the sick list. Mr. Roessler was taken to the East Side hospital at Waterman on Thursday for treatment and surgical attention. Mrs. Roessler who has been suffering with rheumatism and other ailments is under the care of Dr. Peters.
Max Barstow and son David who have spent the past two weeks in Galesburg returned home on Saturday.
Arthur Harper and B. R. Tyerman called on Herman Roessler at the Waterman hospital on Saturday when he was feeling better. Clifford Worsley is able to be out now, after having his hand lacerated by shots while hunting.
Don Bradley is assisting his son Russell in the meat market during the illness of the Roesslers.
Arthur Harper and B. R. Tyerman spent Saturday in Waterman.

Mr. B. Tyerman received the sad news of the death of his sister, Mrs. John McMahon of California who passed away Sunday morning with pneumonia. The McMahons were former residents of this city and have many relatives who mourn her passing. She leaves her husband, one daughter, Mrs. John Race, and one son, Mark, besides three grandchildren. Mrs. McMahon was dearly loved by all who knew her for her christian manner which was so genuine and endearing to all.
The members of the Triple S. class of the M. E. church will hold their annual party, when the ladies entertain their husbands and guests. A 1 o'clock dinner will be served after which the ladies plan to entertain their husbands with a varied program in the afternoon.

Vice Pres. I. A. A. Against Insurance
Chicago, Dec. 12—(AP)—James L. Donnelly, Executive Vice President of the Illinois Manufacturers' Association, has taken a stand against unemployment insurance and the five day week as unsound and impractical he announced.
In a bulletin just mailed to members of the association he said the organization would oppose both measures at the next session of the legislature.
Donnelly drew a marked difference between voluntary limitation of working hours and involuntary legislative restrictions.
"The latter," he said, "is inelastic and would handicap, if not paralyze, many industries which, because of seasonal or trade conditions, must work more than five days a week."
As for unemployment insurance he said experiences of other countries showed it to be "utterly unsound as a means of reducing unemployment and relieving distress."

SHARPE'S CAGE TEAM OF '32 TO MAKE ITS DEBUT

Polo High To Furnish the Opening Battle

Local prep basketball goes into competitive spirits this Friday in the northside high school gymnasium. The opposition in the debut of Coach L. E. Sharpe's 1932-33 team will be Polo. The double-header marks the first of the pair of pre-Christmas contests scheduled for the Dixon squad. Mendota opens the North Central Conference season here, Friday, December 23.

It is expected that the strongest Dixon outfit in years will be viewed from the outlook of the practice sessions. The chances for a winning team are of the best. An entirely different attitude seems to have inspired the boys to a better degree of basketball spirit and cooperation. Sharpe considers his group as the most promising he has coached in Dixon, his local career starting in 1929.

The squad has a fair amount of altitude. Strong, Beech, Bellows, and Hasselberg all are over, or threaten the six-foot mark. This height is one of the many characteristics that was lacking last winter. At the forward positions the fans will see plenty of speed. A newcomer has almost a firm hold on one of these jobs. Earl Flannigan, member of the 1931-32 lightweights has shown such vast improvement as to warrant a first-string berth. Francis Henry, regular on last year's disastrous crew, is vying with Bob Underwood, another B team graduate, for the other forward post. The only fault to find with this trio is their short stature.

Undoubtedly Strong is fast developing into a real court star. He jumps center and should be able to more than hold his own with any jumper. He is the tallest member of the squad. Bellows and Hasselberg have charge of the remaining two positions. Both are lettermen of last year and this pair have added polish to their play, and perform in a high standard.

However, the above-mentioned players do not necessarily comprise the heavyweight team. Beech cannot be left out of the group, neither must Cook, Potts, Fordham, W. Flannigan and a few of the lesser notables, who are liable to cause plenty of excitement later in the season.

In Polo the Dixon teams will be meeting some fast competition. Coach Marvin Johnson's success in turning out winning athletic teams at Polo is an established fact in this section. Always ending high in the Rock River Conference standings, Johnson has managed to cop three consecutive district titles in the case sport.

Dixon fans are happy to again welcome Polo in their return to local athletic entertainment. The last Dixon-Polo basketball game was played in 1927 when Dixon scored its second victory of the season, 33-13. It marked the advent of the banner year in Dixon basketball, the team copping the Rock River Conference title.

Dixon's 14-game schedule is as follows:

Dec. 16—Polo (there).
Dec. 23—Mendota (there).
Jan. 6—Belvidere (there).
Jan. 13—Sterling (there).

PIRATES SECURE LINDSTROM IN THREE-WAY DEAL

Trade With the Giants To Give Bucs Strongest Outfield

New York, Dec. 13.—(AP)—Inspired by the first big player deal of the annual conclave, the magnates of the American and National Leagues settled down today to three solid days of barter, lobby, lounge, and serious efforts to prune the baseball business of all unnecessary expense.

In every corner of the major league hotel headquarters, that two rival managers could find space to argue, bidding for talent broke out afresh at the example set by Bill Terry, young manager of the New York Giants.

Bill vowed, soon after he took the reins from the hands of John McGraw last season, that he's traded every man on the club if he got the chance—and the opposition is giving him a chance to make that threat, or promise, good. Last night he sent Freddy Lindstrom, crack center fielder, to the Pittsburgh Pirates in a three-cornered deal that also involved the Phillies and changed, in all, the residences of five ball players.

Details of Deal
In exchange for Lindstrom and Chick Fullis, a substitute outfielder who moves on to Philadelphia, the Giants received Glenn Spencer, a young right handed pitcher from the Pirates, and George Davis, a fine outfield prospect from the Phillies.

To balance the third corner of the trade the Pirates sent Gus Dugas, 21-year-old outfielder, and a sum of cash not announced, to the Phillies. All the players involved are right handers with the exception of Dugas, a southpaw slugger who came to the Pirates last year after clouting .419 with Kansas City and hit .237 in 53 games, mostly as a pinch hitter.

To the mind of the experts assembled in great numbers for the annual meetings, Terry's second big swap of the off-season gives the Pirates just about the strongest outfield in the National League in the two left handed Waner, Lush, and Lind, and the right handed Lindstrom, and materially enhances their chances of detroning the championship Cubs.

Lindstrom A Star
Freddy, in eight years with the Giants, first as a star at third base and then in center field, has hit an average of .325 despite a drop to .270 last season. He hit his peak in 1930 when he set up a clouting mark of .375.

Davis, who probably will take over Lindstrom's place in center field, is 28 years old, a New York University graduate who came up to the Phillies only last year after a sensational season with St. Paul in the American Association. He proved a steady hitter, batting .299 in 137 games, and a fast, sure fielder. He stole 16 bases last for the National League, and 39 of his hits were doubles.

The record of Spencer in two years with the Pirates is just fair. He is only 26 years old and in 1931 won 11 games while losing 12. Last season he won four and lost eight, mostly as a relief pitcher.

Fullis with the Giants four years, has never achieved the status of a regular. He is 28 years old, averaged .268 at bat for four years, and hit .295 in 36 games last season.

Terry's first big swap of the season several weeks ago sent southpaw pitchers, Bill Walker and Jim Mooney, along with Bob O'Farrell, veteran catcher and Ethan Allen, outfielder to the St. Louis Cardinals in exchange for Ray Starr, young right handed pitcher, and Gus Mancuso, catcher.

Although the club owners, in separate league meetings, had before them the recommendations of the joint "steering committee" of the two major circuits for drastic economies, trades still were of absorbing interest.

Vying with suggestions for lower ticket prices, further reduction of the player limit, and outlawing of radio broadcasts for all but world series games, were the desires of the various clubs to bring out changes something like this:

Washington Senators: A young pitcher or a catcher from Cleveland in exchange for Harley Boss, slugging rookie first baseman, who is excess baggage in the Capital.

Cincinnati Reds: A good outfielder, from any club, with every man on the Cincinnati club with the exception of Red Lucas, St. Johnson, Chick Hafey, offered for choice.

Boston Braves: Wanting a third baseman but refusing to consider any deal involving Wally Berger, Bill Urbanski, Bob Brown, or Huck Betts.

Brooklyn: Looking for a customer for Dazzy Vance, with Mickey Finn, second baseman, offered as special inducement.

Philadelphia Nationals: Still in the market for a second baseman, but refusing all suggestions concerning Chuck Klein, Don Hurst, or Pinky Whitney.

Chicago Cubs—Listening to any and all propositions involving left handed pitching.

Giants—Open to all reasonable offers.

By WILLIAM BRAUCHER
"Slip" Madigan, coach at St. Mary's tips us off that Southern California will beat Pittsburgh in the Rose Bowl — his reason for the tip is that Howard Jones, manager of the Yankees, blandly assured the press that the club looks pretty good to me the way it is. If we need anything in particular, we can look over the farm talent."

JOHNNY HAS NERVE—
Two years ago, when Jockey Johnny Gilbert started riding at Fairmount Park, near St. Louis, his mount fell with him — he received bruises and cuts—but he came back to ride a winner the same day—he fell again at Hawthorne—but came back to win seven races in eight days—he fell at Bowie—and at Havana he was crowded into the fence and broke a bone in his foot—now it appears he is going on to win the year's jockey championship. He may boost his number of winning mounts beyond 200—the record is 207.

CASH HELPS—
Sidney Weil, president of the Cincinnati Reds, says that the deal whereby Babe Herman went to the Cubs, and Richburg, Bob Smith, Hensley and Johnny Moore came to the Reds, involved some cash—enough cash, says he, to re-establish the Cincinnati club's credit, and it was highly important that we did so. There must have been plenty of cash, at that.

TEARS HELP—
They say that Hank Anderson was overcome by his emotions in his pre-Army game pep talk to the boys of old Notre Dame. When he reached the point of saying, "This is the game where you use your either prove you are a Notre Dame football team or just a bunch of stuffed suits," tears as large as footballs rolled from his eyes. Hank should have cried a little before the Pitt game, but saved his lamentations until after the game.

HUNK, THE BIG BEAR—
Anderson has decided against the optimism he radiated last year when he took over the coaching job at South Bend. Now he walks steeped in gloom. The lesson was bitterly learned at Pittsburgh.

By the way, some sort of prize should go to the coplayer who wrote the headline over that flu story: "Trojans Sniff at Notre Dams Sneezes." It seemed to me the year's best football headline.

EAST HITS BACK—
The east, taken here to define that small part of the country between the Rockies and the Atlantic ocean, has had lots of fun this year with Pacific coast ball clubs. Oregon State lost to Fordham and Detroit; St. Mary's lost to Fordham and Alabama, and Stanford lost to Pitt. How quaint and unusual.

RECEIPTS FROM FOOTBALL FELL AROUND 27 PCT.

But A Few Of the Larger Schools Reported An Increase

New York, Dec. 13.—(AP)—College football revenues based on a cross section of financial reports made available to The Associated Press, declined approximately 27 per cent for the 1932 season.

This compares with an estimated 15 per cent drop in attendance, a difference due to the fact that ticket prices generally were reduced throughout the country or scaled in ration to their desirability.

Cash customers, although willing to pay the top prices of former years for the season's most attractive gridiron offerings, manifested a distinct unwillingness to pay as much as formerly for a view of the proceedings from an end zone or outside the ten yard line.

Custodians of the intercollegiate game receipts were in most cases reluctant to give actual figures. A combination of estimates and percentages furnished The Associated Press revealed declines ranging from five to fifty per cent within a representative group of 40 colleges and universities.

Few Had Increases

A small and widely separated group reported increases, including Brown, Purdue and Wisconsin. Columbia's receipts went up, despite some reduction in prices, but official figures were withheld. Oklahoma announced an increase of

DIXON NATIONAL BANK DIXON, ILL.

GOV. EMMERSON GLAD HE'S OUT OF PUBLIC LIFE

Will Welcome Return To Life Of Banker At Mt. Vernon

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 13.—From the Governor's chair back to his job as a country banker at Mt. Vernon—that is the step Louis L. Emmerson is preparing to take and one which, he says, he welcomes.

The state's retiring Chief Executive, who says that hereafter he will be content with the lot of an adviser to younger men in politics, today reviewed a political career that started in 1893 and led him, step by step, from Alderman in Mt. Vernon to the occupancy of the Executive Mansion at Springfield.

Today, as he stood in the halls of that mansion, wherein he has resided for nearly four years, he was reminded of his 20 spacious rooms and said, as he thought of his successor's bachelorhood:

"There is plenty of room for a bachelor."

And from this 20-room mansion the Governor and Mrs. Emmerson will shortly move to a modest eight-room bungalow at Mt. Vernon.

Doubts Wisdom of Laws
During his political career, the Governor recalled, the Civil Service and the direct primary laws have been adopted. He expressed doubt as to the wisdom of both.

"I wonder many times," he said, "whether they have been of material benefit to the state. I question very seriously whether the primary law with a long ballot of unfamiliar names serves to make up a better ticket than convention delegates did."

The Governor, always at his desk at 8 o'clock in the morning, was reminded of his custom of spending, on many occasions, 16 and 17 hours at work.

This he dismissed with the statement: "I feel relieved of the burden carried by every man who has held executive positions during the past four years."

He added that the four years he had spent as Governor were "the hardest four years I ever had."

The Governor said he and Mrs. Emmerson were happy in returning to Mt. Vernon.

"Mt. Vernon has been our home for 45 years," he went on. "Our interests are there. I'm still in the banking business."

Two days after Christmas, the Governor will observe his 69th birthday.

Gov. Emmerson entered state politics in 1905 when Gov. Deneen appointed him to the state Board of Equalization and later to the Southern Illinois Penitentiary board.

It was while on the prison board that Mr. Emmerson first became interested in public welfare problems.

lems and it was two decades later as Governor that he was to direct the reorganization of the welfare department and the state institutions that he considers one of the major achievements of his term.

Retains Confidence
The Governor characterized the November election as a "Republican party setback. It doesn't mean," he said, "that citizens changed to the Democratic party but voted in protest against the Republican party policies which for the present, seem to be unpopular."

"But," he predicted confidently, "the Republican party will return its own."

The Governor's greatest disappointment of his term was the failure of the constitutional revenue amendment at the 1930 election, he revealed.

Almost single-handedly he fought unsuccessfully for its adoption, but has the satisfaction of the subsequent recommendation of his tax conference that no proper revenue legislation can be enacted until the Constitution is amended.

Sidelights In News In Capital Of United States

Washington —The exigencies of politics and a bit of good fortune combined have worked to give a veteran member of the House his big opportunity before he moves out of the national limelight on next March 4.

He is James W. Collier of Mississippi, 60-year-old chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee.

Collier has been a member of the House since 1909. He will have rounded out 24 years of service when this session of Congress comes to a close on March 4th and he retires again to private life.

Most of these years have been spent quietly by the Mississippian on the Ways and Means Committee.

GETS IMPORTANT POST—
Last year when the Democrats came in control of the House, after a lapse of 30 many years, Collier found himself in one of the most powerful and coveted positions in the House.

It was the chairmanship of the Ways and Means Committee. That position was destined to be of exceptional importance in the 72nd Congress. The troublesome task of balancing the budget, possible tariff changes and other things had to be dealt with.

Collier, however, had hardly picked up his gavel when illness forced him out. It became necessary for Crisp of Georgia, the next Democrat in rank, to carry on in his stead. In one session Crisp became a national figure.

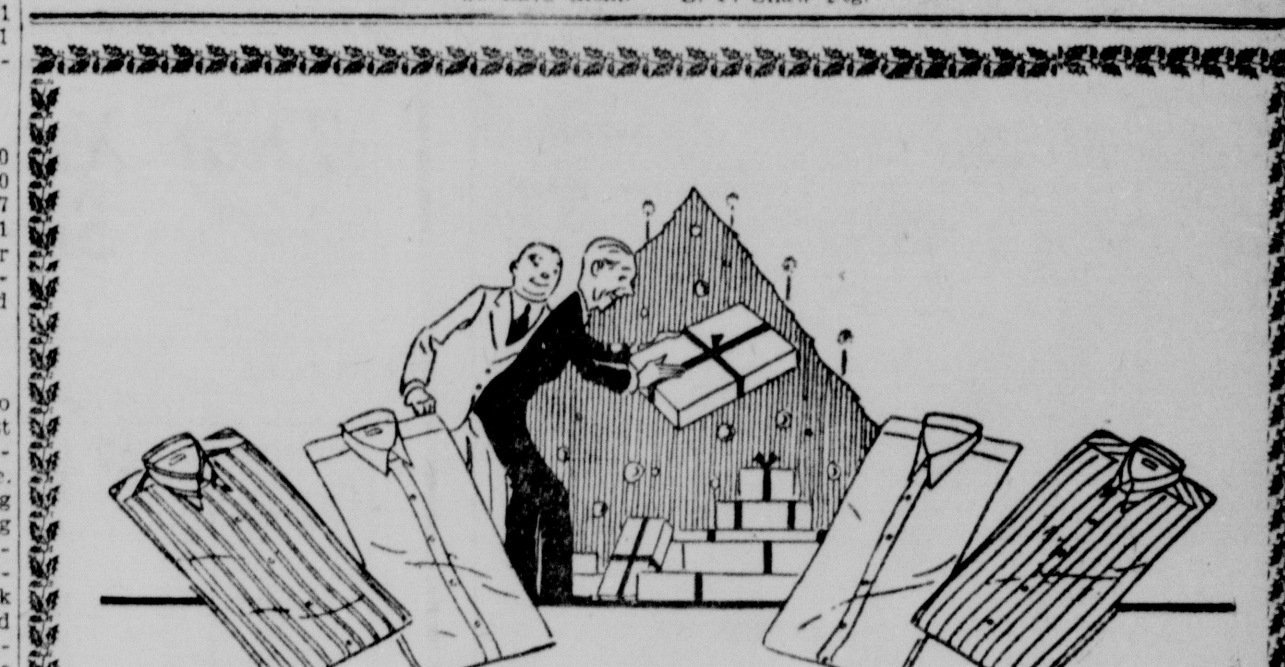

Meanwhile, Collier was slowly regaining his health.

Just prior to the convening of the short session, a Supreme Court decision affecting the Mississippi redistricting law was handed down. It forced Collier to run for his seat in Congress. He declined and must retire on March 4th.

HIS OPPORTUNITY—
But he's back "on the Hill" these days in his seat as Chairman of Ways and Means. His committee has before it now the question of beer, and before the session ends legislation of the most vital importance to the nation will pass before him for review and disposition.

The last three months of an unbroken congressional career extending over 24 years have been reserved for him to make or perhaps break himself.

THE HAND OF FATE
Falmouth, Mass. —"Lady Luck" sure stood behind Tony Perleria recently when he stooped and picked up a moldy old wallet containing $16. Two years ago while Tony was plowing his corn field he had lost the wallet. At that time he had badly needed the money for the winter, but this year he is doubly in need of the money.

REDUCED PANEL OF JURORS FOR LEE CO. COURT

Judge Leach Orders 18 Talesmen For December Term

In keeping with the program of economy being practiced in all departments of the county business, Judge William L. Leach in the County Court yesterday ordered a panel of 18 jurors to report Monday January 19 for the regular December term, instead of 36 men. Bailiff Frank Young was ordered to present the reduced list of prospective jurors to the court the attorneys concurring in the action of the court in this respect.

Judge Leach appointed Attorney Martin J. Garrison to represent five defendants at their trials in the County Court at this term. The action was taken after the Judge had submitted to Attorney General Oscar Carlstrom at Springfield a statement that State's Attorney Edward Jones, before his election had appeared as defense counsel in five cases now pending in the County Court. The Attorney General declined to send a special State's Attorney to Lee county to appear in the prosecution of these five particular cases, from which the former defense counsel has retired since taking up his official duties as State's Attorney and confirmed Judge Leach's suggestion of the appointment of a member of the local bar.

The trial list for the term as taken from the heavy docket of cases which were called yesterday is as follows:

Trial List for Term Common Law—

Willie Lumber Co. vs. L. R. Evans, Dec. 19.

Criminal docket—

People vs. Burnell Knapp and Harold Ventler, larceny and malicious mischief, Dec. 19.

People vs. Ray M. Prunty, child abandonment, Dec. 19.

People vs. Willard M. Jones, statutory charge, Dec. 19.

People vs. Rudolph Reifeldt, statutory charge, Dec. 19.

People vs. Gordon Dorland, possession and transportation of intoxicating liquor, Dec. 20.

People vs. D. D. Considine, possession and sale of intoxicating liquor, Dec. 20.

People vs. John Hogan, possession and transportation of intoxicating liquor, Dec. 22.

People vs. Raymond Brasseur, statutory charge, Dec. 24.

People vs. William H. Gebhardt, practicing without license, Dec. 28.

People vs. John Long, possession and sale of intoxicating liquor, Dec. 23.

People vs. John Hogan, possession and transportation of intoxicating liquor, Dec. 22.

People vs. Raymond Brasseur, statutory charge, Dec. 24.

MURDER

REGIN HERE TODAY
LINDA AVERILL believes her elderly cousin, AMOS PEABODY, was murdered when he fell from the second story balcony of the Averill Long Island home because of a few words he grumbled before his death. Linda rushes upstairs. Someone tries to strangle her and she faints.

There are four guests in the house—all suspects of the crime. They are: MR. STATLANDER, business associate of TOM AYER; LUCY, CAPTAIN DE VOS, handsome Belgian; MARVIN PRATT, former editor of the "Daily Star"; and LAY SHAGHNESSY, Irish writer. Since there is no evidence on which to base an arrest, the police wait. They pretend to believe the death was an accident. They are aided in their plan when DR. BOBBI, medical examiner, sends word that everyone must remain until he has questioned them. Boyle, who is a habitué of the house, and Tom, her husband, agree they must keep the four men in the house until they have discovered the guilty party. They pretend to believe the death was an accident. They are aided in their plan when DR. BOBBI, medical examiner, sends word that everyone must remain until he has questioned them. Boyle, who is a habitué of the house, and Tom, her husband, agree they must keep the four men in the house until they have discovered the guilty party.

Linda had the towel with which the suspect wanted to strangle her—identified by a smear of sunbath oil. It was in the bathroom. Linda told the police. ROSIE, the maid, talking to Shaghnassy about a shirt. Rosie has promised to lend him a shirt. She says he saw no one else and merely stepped out for a breath of air.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXX
"HELLO!" called Tom unceremoniously. Linda, secretly amused at Statlander's confusion, sobered as she saw that her husband was evidently laboring under some excitement. His first words confirmed it. "Something's happened," he said. "Linda—would I see you alone a moment? Sorry. Excuse me, Mr. Statlander."

The other waited him away with a shade of affronted dignity. "Quite all right, quite all right," he replied. "I don't consider me at all. I shall sit here a while, enjoying the view."

What he would enjoy was lost on the Averills, disappearing rapidly in the opposite direction. Linda half-running to keep up with her husband.

"Tom—what on earth? Is some one hurt?" she gasped.

"Oh! Sorry, Binks! Didn't realize I was running you so—or that I scared you, either. No, no great calamity but things are upset again. I'm called—they've finally heard from Dr. Boyle."

"On his way? Oh, and I wanted—"

"No. Out of it entirely."

"What do you mean?"

"Wrecked on the way back. Wild driving, I suppose. Anyhow they had a complete and terrible smash up. Happened a couple of hours ago, but all accounts, but the people have only just heard."

"I thought he wouldn't take all that time!"

"I'll hurry like the dickens—why, Mr. Shaghnassy!—coming out on the terrace? That's right. There's actually a bit of breeze there."

Towering, broad-shouldered and built, in the gloom of the indoor twilight, the Irishman looked at his host in silence. Linda sensed some tingling undercurrent of suspense in his momentary pause and his curt reply.

NEW COOPS ARE NEED OF FARMER BOARD REPORTS

Major Problems Marketing Agencies Are Outlined

Washington, D. C., Dec. 13—(AP)—The need for new cooperative marketing agencies presents the Federal Farm Board with one of its greatest tasks during the coming year, its officials have told Congress.

In 1929 cooperative marketing associations handled, roughly, 15 per cent of the products sold by farmers, with about 12,000 organizations operating. The number of active associations has declined slightly to 11,900 as a result of consolidations and mergers; but the volume of business has increased, so that by 1931 about 20 per cent of farmers' cash income was obtained from products delivered to cooperative associations.

Approximately one farmer out of 10 is a member of one or more associations. Although steady progress has thus been made, there is still much to be accomplished before the full potentialities of cooperative organization can be realized.

The need for new cooperative marketing agencies is quite different in various commodity fields. Producers' organizations are already fully developed for handling dairy products and for local marketing of grains. For products such as livestock, cooperative organizations have been formed in most important areas of production, but as yet only a minority of the producers are members, and the cooperatives handle only a small to moderate share of the total business—roughly between one-seventh and one-third.

Much remains to be done to determine where new organizations are needed, and how they may best be established. Each situation requires careful examination of the functions which a cooperative might perform, of the possibility of existing private agencies, and of the readiness of producers to form an organization.

Very few existing cooperatives are now used to their full capacity, with the exception of some of the fluid milk organizations which control their markets, and certain specialized fruit associations, which handle almost all of the product in their areas. In many cases, local organizations are supported by only a fraction of the farmers in their district, and in many regions existing local agencies are not yet making full use of the terminal sales facilities which have been provided for them through regional and national organizations.

Businesslike Household Loan Plan Is Attracting Many

The Household Finance Corporation office in Freeport is serving many families in Dixon. They have found that the Household Loan Plan offers a confidential, businesslike and economical way to borrow money.

Under the Household Loan Plan you can borrow $300 or less to help tide over family financial emergencies. The cost is as low as the economies of Household's large volume and efficient management can make it.

Under the Household Plan the only signatures required are those of husband and wife. You do not have to have friends or relatives endorse your note. No investigations are made among friends, tradespeople, or employers—the loan is strictly between you and Household. Any married couple permanently located and keeping house whose normal income is sufficient to meet living expenses plus small payments on a loan is eligible to borrow under this plan. If you desire further information on the Household Loan Plan just address the Household Finance Corporation, Tarbox Building, Freeport, Ill.

Billiard Champ Faces Hard Row

New York Dec. 13—(AP)—The road that Ralph Greenleaf must travel to retain his national pocket billiard championship grows much tougher from now on.

The dapper New Yorker has hung up four successive victories in the current championship tournament but his five remaining matches all will pit him against more strenuous opposition than he so far has been forced to overcome.

Behind him were conquests over James Mills of San Jose, Calif., Walter Franklin of Kansas City, Frank Taborski of Shenectady, N. Y., and George Kelly of Philadelphia. Ahead of him were battles with Jimmy Caras of Wilmington, Del., Edwin Rudolph of Cleveland,

ARRANGE DATES FOR VOCATIONAL FAIR THIS MONTH

High School Sectional Event In Prophetstown Dec. 21 And 22

At a meeting of the premium list committee for the poultry and grain division of the vocational fair for section one in Illinois, it was decided that the event to be held at Prophetstown this winter will be held on two days during the week before Christmas instead of the two days immediately following Thanksgiving. This was made necessary by the fact that the poultry classes entered by the boys will not have had time to develop their full plumage following the molting period and also by the fact that more help could be secured for conducting the fair at the later date. The probable dates set for this fair are Dec. 21 and 22, the Wednesday and Thursday before Christmas.

This change will also enable the boys, who are going to make entries, to get them ready in a suitable condition for showing. The birds will need to be cleaned up and otherwise fitted for exhibition. There will be available for prizes at this fair the sum of $385, all of which can be used only as prize money and not a cent can be spent for any general expense involved in conducting the fair. The money necessary to pay for hiring a poultry judge and a grain judge, as well as meeting any other expense incurred in operating the fair, will have to be secured by some other means. There is a plan now under way which may make it necessary that each boy making entries will be taxed possibly five or ten cents an entry. This seems to be the fairest method, because it does not work a very great hardship on any boy, and the more entries a boy makes the greater will be the possible amount of cash prizes which he is likely to win, and naturally the more he should pay for making his entries.

The premium list has been practically completed and will be sent out in typewritten form to the 17 high schools in the section. This list of contestants from each school was collected, and these were compiled to get the total numbers of contestants in each class. In classes where there was only one probable contestant this class was not included in the premium list.

According to this pre-registration list, there will be approximately the following numbers of contestants in each class:

Potatoes, 30 contestants; wheat and oats each, 7; yellow corn, 80; white corn, 10; Bared Rock chickens, 14; White Rock, 10; Leghorns, 8; White Wyandottes, 6; Buff Orpingtons, 7. Then there will be some entries in classes for any other breed of chickens; for brown eggs and for white eggs. In the grain division there will be classes for 10 ear samples and 50 ear samples in yellow corn and the same for white corn. Entries also may be made of one peck of shelled corn in the yellow variety. In the poultry division there will be three entries possible for each breed, namely, a pen of three pullets and one cockerel, a cockerel and a pullet. For potato entries there is but one class: for wheat, entries, one class, and oats entries, one class.

The $385 to be used as prize money will be divided in premiums according to the number of probable entries. That is for the large probable corn entries, prize money amounting to $218 will be awarded; for potatoes, $17.25; for wheat and oats together, $12; and for all poultry classes, $137.75. This appears to be the fairest scheme, and no doubt will come nearer to satisfying all parties concerned.

STERLING'S PHARMACY

W. F. PRIEBE'S WEEKLY LETTER TO POULTRY RAISERS

I have often said in public meetings that one of the biggest troubles with farming is the fact that a farmer gets too doggone much advice from college professors who have never been on a farm.

And the worst part about it is that a lot of this advice is not sound. To illustrate: This year in November poultry dealers wanted to buy the turkeys that were ready for Thanksgiving. They wanted to buy them early so they would have time to dress them, pack them, chill them and get them to market a week before the holiday—because that is when people in the cities buy their turkeys.

But over the air and in "farm papers" men who in many cases, have set themselves up as the farmer's friends were saying, "Hold your turkeys. There is going to be a good demand. Hold your turkeys."

And farmers (please remember that I am speaking in general) held their turkeys.

When they finally started to sell them, just before Thanksgiving, there was a regular avalanche. Most of them reached the market after the buying was finished. You know the calamity. I have told you that in New York alone over 300 carloads of turkeys had to be placed in storage.

'Professional Advice' Dangerous. The point I want to bring out is this: If the turkeys had been sold at the proper time for a reasonable price, many of those that were stored would have been consumed. There would not be this large "hang-over" and there would be a better market on turkeys today.

The advice you get from these "professional farmers" may sound good, but too often it has proved costly. The fact is that few of these people have actually handled farm products. They may be perfectly sincere in what they tell you, but the truth remains that most of them do not understand farm marketing.

Frankly, I believe you would be wiser to listen to your produce dealer when it is a question of selling poultry and eggs. In most cases he has had years of experience in marketing your products. He lives in the same community with you. He can prosper only if YOU prosper, and it is foolish to think that he would deliberately give you misleading advice.

I am opposed to publicity that tends to destroy the faith of the farmer in his local dealer. To me it seems like good common sense to put your confidence in your produce man. Regard him as the friend he is, work with him and I believe that you will get much further.

Sincerely yours, W. F. Priebe (Copyright, December 10, 1932, W. F. Priebe, 110 North Franklin, Chicago, Ill.)

PLAN AG. CONTEST IN SPEAKING FOR FUTURE FARMERS

Vocational Students Of Section One Will Compete At Rochelle

Section one of Illinois vocational agriculture in high schools will hold its annual public speaking contest at Rochelle high school Friday evening of March 10, 1933. This contest is for Future Farmer boys who are at present enrolled in high schools which have vocational agriculture in their curricula. Of the 17 such schools, the following had Future Farmer chapters in 1931-32: Fulton, Ash-ton, Rochelle, Dakota, Dixon, Lanark, Leaf River, Milledgeville, Mt. Carroll, Orangeville, Pearl City, Rock Falls, Stockton and Polo. Since that time there may have been other chapters organized and which are now functioning.

One of the primary aims of the Future Farmers of America is the development of leadership. Ability to speak well in public is a desirable quality in any leader and its importance in the development of future agricultural leaders is not being overlooked by the Future Farmer organization.

The winner of the sectional public speaking contest has a long road to travel before he can become the winner of the national public speaking contest held at Kansas City, Mo., each year some time in December. He must first win the sectional contest. Then he tries out for a district contest, in which winners of other sectional contests compete in the district contest. The winner of the district contest competes in the sectional contest, the winner of which competes in a state contest.

The state winners appear in a regional contest, and finally the regional winners enter the national public speaking contest. If he wins a national contest he is ranked as being the best speaker of all speakers among Future Farmers of America. In addition to this he is awarded $400 in cash and a gold Future Farmer medal. The winner of second place in the national contest receives $300 in cash and a silver F. F. A. medal. The third place winner receives $200 and a silver medal, and the fourth place winner receives $100 and a bronze medal.

The first public speaking contest held in section one took place at Dixon in 1931 with three contestants, a Dixon boy being the winner. The second contest was in Rock Falls, in 1932, in which there were seven entries and a Polo boy was winner. The possibilities for this winter's contest are that 15 or more boys will compete. This will indeed be a thrilling battle of words, and, needless to say, the competition will be very keen. It can truthfully be stated, however, that some of the speeches delivered would do credit to many professional orators. Anyone having the opportunity would do well to attend this contest and observe what is being done in vocational agriculture in developing this phase of rural leadership.

Farm Radio

The story of how farm men and women use the economic services of their State agricultural colleges and the United States Department of Agriculture will be told by a farm woman from Rhode Island and a farm-management specialist from Illinois in the land grant college radio program to be broadcast during the Farm and Home Hour, Wednesday, December 21, by the 47-station NBC network.

The department program for the week will include important business reports of interest to dairymen, hog growers, and poultry raisers and reports on new findings in scientific work and on progress in regulatory work. On Monday, December 19, Walter Campbell, Director of Regulatory Work, will review new developments in the enforcement of the food and drug act.

The program for the week follows:

MONDAY, Dec. 19: "Science and Soil Fertility," H. G. Knight, Bureau of Chemistry and Soils; "Food and Drug Law Enforcement in 1932," Walter G. Campbell, Food and Drug Administration.

TUESDAY, Dec. 20: "The Household Calendar," Ruth Van Deman, Bureau of Home Economics; "The Garden Calendar," W. R. Beattie, Bureau of Plant Industry.

WEDNESDAY, Dec. 21: "How Farmers Are Using Facts in Their Business," H. M. Dixon, Office of Cooperative Extension Work; "Some New Facts About the Dairy Business," J. B. Shepard, Bureau of Agricultural Economics; "What Home Accounts Contribute to the Farm Home," Mrs. Mary Harrington, Rhode Island farm woman; "Farm Accounts—Are They Helpful?" M. L. Mosher, farm-management specialist, University of Illinois.

THURSDAY, Dec. 22: "The Trend of Poultry Production," S. A. Jones, Bureau of Agricultural Economics; "Uncle Sam's Forest Rangers," Forest Service series.

FRIDAY, Dec. 23: "How Many Pigs on Farms?" C. L. Harlan, Bureau of Agricultural Economics; "The Week With the Farm Board," Frank Ridgway, Federal Farm Board; second Farm Board speaker to be announced.

The National Farm and Home Hour is broadcast from 11:30 A. M. to 12:30 P. M. CST by stations WOC and KYW.

Farming Factors

CONSUMPTION AND EGG PRODUCTION

By Prof. H. D. Munroe

Many early hatched pullets lay a few eggs and then go into a molt. This can be prevented if the birds are so fed that they can produce eggs, grow and still maintain their body weight.

As soon as early hatched pullets start to lay they should be housed in their winter quarters and started on the laying mash. Be sure that they have enough hopper space. One foot of feeding space to each four birds is desirable.

Scratch grain should be fed in troughs once a day at about four o'clock in the afternoon. The birds should be given all the grain they will clean up by the time they go to roost. Never allow grain to be before the birds all day. Feeding too much grain will result in the birds getting over-fed and they will not eat enough to keep up the body weight. Laying pullets should consume twelve pounds of scratch feed daily.

In addition to dry laying mash before them all the time, and one desirable to feed a moist, fattening mash once daily. Give the flock all the moist fattening mash they will consume in ten minutes. This mash, if fed daily at about ten o'clock in the morning, will help to keep up the body weight.

many sections of the corn belt. Primary receipts are abnormally light.

"The expected increase in butter production compared with a year previous failed to materialize up to early winter. Prices probably will weaken shortly, however, as production usually begins to show seasonal increases before December is over and higher retail prices may cause consumption to slacken."

"Fresh egg prices appear to have started their seasonal decline. Spells of severe weather will cause occasional sharp upturns in prices."

"Poultry receipts have continued liberal and prices have remained weak. Poultry prices usually begin to improve in January."

"Farm - Home Week Will Be Observed at U. Of I. Jan. 16-20"

Urbana, Ill., Dec. 13.—More alert than ever to keep abreast of the times, several thousand farmers, farm women and agricultural leaders of the state are expected to gather here, January 16 to 20, for the thirty-fifth annual Farm and Home Week at the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois.

Low prices have spurred farm folks, rather than discouraged them, in working out their own problems, judging from the number of inquiries received about this year's Farm and Home Week, the officials announced. Last year 3,173 farm folks registered for the week and the year before that there were 3,146.

Earl C. Smith, president of the Illinois Agricultural Association; Willis M. Baker, director of the Central States Forest Experiment Station, Columbus, O.; and Pres. H. W. Chase, of the University of Illinois, already have been scheduled as speakers for part of the general sessions.

Efficient power, farm tenancy, manufacturing and marketing of farm dairy products, home vegetable gardening, home flower gardening; marketing of livestock, grain, poultry and eggs, milk and dairy products; the farm real estate outlook and a score or more of other current problems will be dealt with in approximately 35 courses which are being planned by various departments of the college.

Two new features this year will be a foods and nutrition exhibit stressing economy in foods and the utilization of farm-grown products and a display of seed-cleaning machinery aimed at helping farmers cope with the growing menace of weed seeds.

Recreational and entertainment features include an ice carnival, a special evening program by the University of Illinois orchestra, "play night" directed by Willis A. Parker, formerly of the National Playground and Recreational Association, and the state music and drama tournament.

The annual Illinois Seed Grain and Utility Corn Show, and meetings of such organizations as the Illinois Crop Improvement Association and various dairy breed associations are other features of the program.

F. F. A. Grain And Poultry Show 14th.

Mount Carmel, Ill. —(AP)—Future Farmers of America—vocational agricultural students in high schools—will meet here December 14, 15 and 16 for the annual sectional poultry and grain show.

Fifteen schools in section 14 are expected to participate in this show which will be under the management of O. O. Moore, agricultural teacher in Mount Carmel high school.

Schools expected to send entries and take part are those at Albion, Allendale, Bridgeport, Fairfield, Florida, Hutsonville, Lawrenceville,

Weekly Review of Agriculture by Farmers' Paper

Chicago, Ill., —(AP)—Decline in industrial activity, in employment and in consumers' incomes in the last six weeks has been less than the corresponding period of 1931 or 1930, but seems to be fully as sharp as the normal trend at this season, the Prairie Farmer's market review said. December and early January will be a period of hesitation to be followed by a period of seasonal rise toward the early spring season.

"Cattle market prospects for the near future appear weak, although the chances of strength by late winter are improving," the review continued. "In a majority of years, prices of the better grades of steers sag toward the holidays, with a small rise in early January followed by a renewed decline by early February."

Lower grades of killing steers and the she-stock, and stockers and feeders often turn to strong, early in the new year with a slow rise toward spring. The light movement of feeders to the country in the last two months points to less competition in the fat steer market in late winter than usual.

"While receipts of hogs have been increasing, demand also is broadening, indicating that they are cutting out profitably to the packers and that declines will attract support. Higher average weights, light receipts through November, and the usual tendency in seasons of heavy corn crops suggest that hogs have been held back to some extent. Large receipts are probable during January. Prices probably are scratching their winter bottom although it will be several weeks before sustained improvement will occur."

Lamb prices have been climbing out of their autumn valley, but slipping back sharply at times. Receipts have been declining more rapidly than usual at this season. Prices probably will average higher in the next few weeks. The undertone in the wool prices is fairly confident and prices have lost only a minor part of the summer rise.

"A grist of stronger wheat market news appears probable in the next 30 days. The December crop reports for the United States probably will give official confirmation of the reduced acreage and poor start of the next winter wheat crop and may lower substantially the last spring wheat crop estimate."

"Corn prices are likely to stabilize in the next few weeks, largely because they are already so low at the farm that they cover little more than hauling costs in many sections of the corn belt. Primary receipts are abnormally light."

"The expected increase in butter production compared with a year previous failed to materialize up to early winter. Prices probably will weaken shortly, however, as production usually begins to show seasonal increases before December is over and higher retail prices may cause consumption to slacken."
